

Hosted by the Solar Energy Industries Association's President & CEO, Abigail Ross Hopper, SEIA's Solar Sisters Networking Events offer an opportunity for women to convene and have honest conversations about their lives as employees, bosses, mothers, daughters, friends, partners, and all the various and many ways they show up in the world.

These events are intimately structured for women in the solar and storage space to identify mentorship opportunities, learn from other female leaders, build lasting relationships, and celebrate and empower other women in the clean energy sector. These small private events feature guest speakers and are designed to facilitate meaningful conversations among women in the industry. Attendees have included the following industry titles: CEO, President, COO, Partner, Co-Founder, Managing Director, Chief Financial Officer, Director, Manager and more.

Solar Sisters Networking Events are designed for individuals who identify as female and/or gender diverse. We welcome all women (including transgender women) and individuals who identify as female, non-binary, gender expansive, or a representative of a marginalized gender.
